IRISH RAILWAY MEN DECLINE TO UNLOAD ARMY STORES

Threaten General Strike If Engineers Who Balked Lose Places

SITUATION GRAVE

Military Is Estopped From March By Stone Barricades

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 24.—The Irish Railwaymen's Union has followed the dockers in refusing to handle military stores. A general strike of railwaymen in Ireland is threatened in the event of the punishment of two engine-drivers who refused to drive a train, loaded with munitions by the military at Kingston.

The engine-drivers at Ballinamore refused to drive a train, conveying to prison three men, charged with raiding for arms. An army motor-lorry arrived for the prisoners but was unable to enter the town for some time owing to the roads for miles around being blocked by felled trees, blown-up bridges and stone barricades. The military have occupied Ballinamore.

New Zealand Lauded By Prince Of Wales

(Reuter's Service)

Lyttelton, N. Z., May 21.—The Prince of Wales has concluded his tour of New Zealand and will sail for Melbourne on board the Renown tomorrow.

In his farewell message to New Zealand, the Prince said that he had been particularly impressed by the fact that New Zealand did not merely afford an opportunity for some but for all. He had never seen such well-being and happiness uniformly throughout a population.

"New Zealand," the Prince continued, "is also a living example of the fact that the European race may take over a new country without injustice to its original inhabitants and that both may advance in mutual confidence and understanding along a common path. New Zealand is one of the greatest monuments to British civilisation."

His Royal Highness added that he felt that, from end to end of the Dominion, there was no place where the British people were more set in British tradition or truer to British form.

The Prince concluded his speech with references to the strong feeling of loyalty existing towards the Empire and the Sovereign.

Play And Battle Linked When Names Of Martyrs Are Brought Into Meeting

Tribute was paid yesterday by members of the Shanghai Cricket Club to the men who gave their lives in the world war. At the close of the meeting the members of the organisation stood reverently, in commemoration of the men who had made the great sacrifice.

Mr. A. P. Wood, President of the Club, was in the chair.

A presentation of a silver cigar box was made to the retiring Secretary, Mr. C. D. Field.

The result of the election of the General Committee for 1920 was as follows: President, Mr. A. P. Wood; Committee: Messrs. G. M. Billings, W. N. Hansell, C. D. Field, R. Grimshaw, N. B. Ramsay, H. E. Muriel and Dr. H. E. Morris.

A vote of thanks was moved to the Chairman.

The Chairman said:

"I also wish to record the loss the Club has sustained by the death of Mr. Lanning, one of the oldest, if not the oldest member of the Club, and really the "Father of Cricket" in Shanghai. Mr. Lanning helped the Club in many ways, and the members now desire to record their sympathy to the family of the late Mr. Lanning.

VETERANS WELCOMED

"It is a great pleasure to welcome back so many members who have been fighting for the great cause and also the others who have been absent from Shanghai for some time, and I feel sure we can look forward to a very interesting season. The two matches already played shows there is plenty of new blood in the Club, and that the grand old game will flourish and be more popular than ever.

"The members who have returned will, I feel sure, be satisfied that during the time they have been away their interests have been well looked after, and will, I hope, be pleased with the rejuvenated and up-to-date pavilion and appointments.

"I hope there will be lots of good matches and plenty of games for everybody.

"The ground is in splendid condition, so we may look forward to some tall scoring, but it must also be remembered that several new bowlers have arrived who will take some playing before big scores are made. Members will have to practise hard to get their place in the good matches.

TEAM TO HANKOW

"The Club sent a team to Hankow and had a most enjoyable game, bringing back the flag. All the members of the Club are much indebted and wish to thank Hankow for their hospitality and kindness to our eleven.

"It hardly seems possible that six years has elapsed since the last Interport Match with Hongkong, but such is the case. Hongknow came here in May, 1914, but now the War is over and as men are returning to fill the depleted staffs, I hope it will be possible in the autumn of this year to send an eleven to Hongkong, and if the men can be spared we

Hiram Johnson Has Lead Slightly Over Wood For Presidency In Shanghai

American Residents In Far East Vote In Favor Of Californian When 'Straw Ballot' Is Taken In Foreign Community By Newspaper

Interest in the next American presidential election began to stir the foreign community yesterday when a straw vote was called for by THE CHINA PRESS. Hiram Johnson, former governor of California and now United States senator, showed a slight lead over Major General Leonard Wood, chief aide to Colonel Roosevelt in his "Rough Rider" days and Herbert Hoover, food director in the World War for the United States, was in third place.

Although only Americans were asked to cast "straw ballots" there seemed to be almost as much interest among other nationals as with the citizens of the United States when the vote was called for. The world's critical situation was the apparent explanation of this condition.

"Straw" voting was light yesterday but is expected to be much heavier this evening. Hiram Johnson led with 18 votes. General Wood had only 13 in his favor and Herbert Hoover registered 10 ballots. Mr. Hughes, former Justice of the United States Supreme Court and Republican candidate for the presidency in 1916, scored only two supporters as first choice.

Only one Democrat voted and only one woman's name was signed to the list. It is expected that the results reported will be much more representative.

On second choice General Wood [illegible] Senator Johnson. His vote was 19 against the Senator's 12. Mr. Coolidge had 1 vote, Mr. Hoover had 10. Former President William Howard Taft had 1 and Mr. William McAdoo, son-in-law of President Woodrow Wilson and former director-of-railroads, had 1 vote.

"Up-state" had not been heard from but it was expected that the American community in Shanghai will respond today with a free expression of opinion as to what should be done in the selection of an executive head for the government in the days of reconstruction.

Summer Health Hints Issued By Dr. Stanley

Dr. Arthur Stanley, health officer, has issued the following hints in today's issue of The Municipal Gazette to prevent ailments not uncommon here during the summer time. His notice is appended:

The following measures are recommended for the purpose of preventing those diseases which by means of public sanitation and by individual careful living are preventable, such as Typhoid Fever, Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea and other bowel disorders, Small-pox, Scarlet Fever, Diphtheria, Tuberculosis, Plague and Malaria.

Public Measures

Sanitary inspection of houses will be carried out free of charge on application to the Health Officer. Persons about to rent houses are advised to ask the Health Officer for a sanitary inspection and a certificate of good sanitation before closing with the landlord.

Conditions dangerous to health should be reported to the Health Officer.

Isolation of cases of dangerous infectious disease is provided free at the Isolation Hospital, Range Road.

Disinfection of premises after infectious disease will be carried out free of charge on application to the Health Officer.

Vaccination is provided gratuitously at the Branch Health Offices.

Individual Measures

Eat and Drink nothing that has not been recently cooked, boiled or otherwise sterilised.

Do not Consume:

*Fruit, vegetables, salads, melons, etc., which have not been cooked or sterilised.

Food on which flies have settled.

*Milk or cream which has not been boiled or sterilised.

*Water which has not been boiled or filtered through a Brownlow filter.

Aerated water and other drinks unless of best quality.

Alcoholic drinks during the hot weather.

Bread which has not been sterilised by re-heating in an oven.

Ice-cream unless made of boiled materials.

Uncooked oysters.

*Fruit, tomatoes, melons, etc., can be sterilised without spoiling the flavor, so that they can be safely eaten raw, by dipping for a few seconds into briskly boiling water. Strawberries are better sterilised by dipping into boiling sugar syrup. Milk and cream can be sterilised by placing the bottles in a pan of cold water and gradually raising to boiling point. The candle of the filter should be lightly scrubbed in running water and boiled once a week.

Kitchen supervision should be thorough because the preventable diseases specially prevalent in Shanghai are mostly caused by infected food. Every house should have a serving-room adjoining the dining-room and separate from the kitchen. The serving-room should contain the Brownlow filter, ice-chest, table utensils, washing sink, boiled milk, drinks, bread, butter, sterilised fruit and other cooked or prepared foods. Cooking or boiling destroys infection.

Vegetables and fruit grown near the ground, being watered as a rule with nightsoil, are specially liable to be soiled with the germs of Typhoid fever, Cholera, Dysentery and other bowel diseases, and should, before cooking, be strictly kept out of the serving-room and from contact with cooked or prepared food.

Flies carry disease so they should be excluded from the serving-room, kitchen and servants' latrine by providing spring slam doors and unopenable windows screened by perforated zinc; and from the food on the table by fly covers.

Vaccination should be done on or before arrival in Shanghai and afterwards every three years, in November.

Vaccination against Typhoid fevers should be done on or before arrival in Shanghai and repeated yearly in May.

Keep rats out of your house. Starve the rats by providing no food for them in and around your house. Make your house rat-proof.

Mosquitos carry malaria. Where mosquitos cannot be exterminated by abolishing stagnant water or by the use of kerosine oil, or by reporting their presence to the Health Officer, the mosquito net should be carefully used. A weekly inspection should be made and no standing water permitted.

Refuse should not be allowed to accumulate, and a properly covered rat and flyproof receptacle should be provided. Nightsoil buckets should be kept securely closed including those in the servants' latrines. Proper receptacles for these purposes may be obtained at the Health Office. Yards and drains should be kept in a good state of repair and freely flushed with water.

Fire Department Spends Busy Month

Twenty-Seven Calls Answered And Over 258 Hours Are Put In

The total number of calls made by the Fire Department last month, according to Chief M. W. Pett's report to the Municipal Council, was 27. The main supposed causes within the Settlement were incendiarism 4, overheated stove pipe 2, overheated drug 2, dropped match or cigarette 2, chimney sparks 2, timber in chimney 1, fusing of electric wires 1, lamp in contact with curtain 1 and unknown 1. The brigade was occupied 258 hours and 54 minutes at fires.

An outbreak which might have had serious results occurred on April 6 at 5:37 p.m. when the temporary carpenter's shop at the east of the Great Northern Telegraph Co.'s new building under construction was found to be well alight, and the fire was spreading rapidly to the scaffolding and bamboo screens around the building a number of sunblinds on McBain's building were in flames. It was only by exceedingly quick work of the Central Division that the fire was quickly extinguished with only little damage.

The Brigade rendered valuable assistance at a fire at Pootung on April 9, when godowns A, B, C, D, at Lee Nee Du Wharf occupied by Chinese, were found in flames. It was a most difficult fire to tackle owing to the fumes and smoke from a very large quantity of pepper and sugar respectively stored in the buildings involved. Landing parties from warships in the harbor and the River Police with the Custom's Float and Butterfield and Swire's Fire Float also gave valuable assistance. The fire was confined to the buildings already in flames on arrival of Brigade.

Obituary

DR. JOHN A. BRASHEAR

"Uncle John" Brashear is dead.

The five words will bring regret to the many friends the distinguished American made in China when he visited this country three years ago in company with Messrs Ambrose Swazey and John R. Cleveland.

For many years "Uncle John" was known as Pittsburgh's "Grand Old Man."

Dr. John A. Brashear, scientist and well-known expert in the development and manufacture of astronomical instruments of precision, died at Pittsburgh, April 8, after a long illness.

Dr. Brashear was born in Brownsville, Pa., in 1840, and educated in the public schools. He learned the machinists' trade and from 1860-1870 worked in the rolling mills of Pittsburgh. The study of astronomy, however, had been his hobby from boyhood, and all his spare time was devoted to it. In 1870 he attracted the attention of Langley, then head of the Allegheny Observatory, and through the assistance of William Thaw, one of the observatory patrons, set up a shop in Allegheny for the manufacture of astronomical instruments. In a short time he became widely known as an expert.

Perhaps his most important achievement was in connection with the design and development of the spectroscope for astronomical uses, particularly with reference to the mechanical features. In 1888 he completed the spectroscope for the 36-in. telescope of the Lick Observatory, furnishing the mechanical parts, and at the same time a complete small spectroscope, including the prisms and all other optical parts. From 1898 to 1900 he was acting director of the Allegheny Observatory, and through his efforts it was put in every possible way at the disposal of the public. For a number of years Dr. Brashear was a trustee of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, and it is said that he did more for the cause of education in Pittsburgh than any other three men.

He was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Royal Astronomical Society of Great Britain; past-president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania and the Pittsburgh Academy of Arts and Sciences and a member of other scientific associations.

ought to be able to send a very strong eleven.

"Whilst on the question of cricket, it may be as well to mention that in the home papers I notice it has been decided to revert to three days for champion matches, and also that they are trying to make them fit in, so that the most important matches can be finished on a Saturday, in order to allow a greater number of people to attend. The reason for going back to the old custom of three days for big matches is, I understand, due to it being found that in the two-day matches the long time of play tired, not only the players, but also the spectators, and that many times the ground was practically empty before stumps were drawn.

METHODS OF SCORING

"I also notice the following alteration in the methods of scoring. It has been decided that 5 points are now to be given for a decisive success, and 2 points, instead of 3, for a lead on the 1st innings if the match is not played out, and the single point that was given to the side behind on the first innings has been abolished.

"I am also pleased to see that Wisdom's Almanack is itself again this year as before the War, full of all manner of statistics which appeal alike to men and boys.

TENNIS

"Although wet weather prevented some of the tournaments being completed, much tennis has been played and considerable interest taken in the games and matches played on the ground.

"I am sure tennis is as popular as ever, judging from the large attendance when important games are played on the Cricket Ground.

"It is quite a pleasure to see so many ladies enjoying the game on our Monday evening guest nights, the success of which is now fully assured.

ACCOUNTS

"With reference to the accounts, you will see that they are stated in a different way to previously, and also that in addition to the statement of the annual receipts and expenditure, a balance sheet has been drawn up to show liabilities and assets of the Club.

"From a perusal of these figures, I am sure you will agree with me that the Club is in a very satisfactory condition.

"Economy must be the order of the day, so that the Club can pay off every year a portion of its liabilities.

"The Report and Accounts have been in your hands for some days, and deal so fully with all the different items that it is unnecessary for me to furnish you with any more details, but I shall be pleased to give you any further information if required.

"Before asking you to pass the Report and Accounts, I must thank all the members who have so willingly given their assistance to help the Committee to carry out the wishes of the members and to further the best interests of the Club, especially Mr. W. A. Willis, for auditing the accounts, and Mr. E. S. Wilkinson for preparing our first balance sheet.

"We are very sorry to lose Mr. Stagg, who has been transferred to Vladivostok. As you all know, Mr. Stagg has been a most active member of the Committee for many years, and has done so much to further the best interests of cricket and the welfare of the Club in every way.

"We are very fortunate in being able to welcome back Mr. Muriel. We all know he is a keen and enthusiastic cricketer.

"I am not saying much about Mr. Field, our late Secretary, as I hope to have an opportunity to do so later.

"The Club is very fortunate to have been able to secure the services of Mr. Bliss to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. Field. Mr. Bliss is well acquainted with secretarial work and is just the man for the post.

COMMITTEE

Before asking you to vote for the committee, I wish to remind you that we want a representative Cricket Committee and also active members to look after the interests of the tennis members. You will remember that at the meeting of 1918, it was considered advisable, owing to the additional work now required, to increase the General Committee from 5 to 7, who will run the Club without, as in former years, appointing sub-committees to assist the General Committee, but now that the membership is so much increased the incoming Committee may consider it advisable to ask the assistance of some members to assist them on the different sub-committees.

"As you are well aware, Mr. Ramsay has done a lot of work for the tennis players, and takes the greatest interest in the game.

JAPAN AND NEW RUSS STATE OPEN PEACE PARLEY

(see the note of recognition). Economic and financial treaties are being discussed.

IV. International outlook: The Independent Democratic States bear in mind that only the decision of the Allies, especially America should use pressure in bringing about peace in the Far East. Semenoff should be considered as quantite negligeable who breathes thanks to the Japanese, who built barrier round Chita. The latter could have been taken if not for the desire of the Government to keep back any military actions with the Japanese forces. The Japanese claim about the Bolsheviks on the Chita front is groundless.

If Japan's proclamation May 11, is sincere Japan must demand Semenoff to evacuate Chita, lift the barrier, open a road for peace emissaries of our Government who will enter Eastern Transbaikal with the idea to organise a democratic government.

The unity of the territory from the Lake of Baikal to the Pacific under one government is a condition sine qua non and the sooner all learn this the better it will be for the peace of the world.

ADMIRAL LINE TO GET TWO FASTEST SHIPS ON PACIFIC

Besides entering the passenger field in the Far East, as the Admiral Line intends to do in October with four new liners that have been allocated to it by the United States Shipping Board, the company is to build two new passenger ships for its coastal trade in America. These vessels will run between Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles and as they will be 25-knot an hour boats they will be the fastest on the Pacific.

Announcement that these new vessels are to be built at once was received yesterday by Mr. J. J. Gorman, General Agent of the Admiral Line in the Orient with headquarters here. Descriptions of the new ships call to mind the magnificence of the greatest liners plying the Atlantic to Europe. The new vessels each are to cost $4,000,000. They will have five decks, four for the accommodation of passengers and will be 560 feet long with beam of 72 feet and depth of 53 feet.

The new ships, in fact, will be huge floating hotels providing every modern convenience and comfort with elevator service, a drug store, laundry, hospital and many other facilities.

It is noteworthy that this new service from Seattle south by sea will be faster than existing railway lines. At the speed the new vessels will attain they will be able to cover the run from Seattle to San Francisco in 32 hours. The time of the Shasta Limited, the fastest train running between the two ports, is 39 hours. The new ships will be oil burners and will be driven by electric turbines. They will each have accommodations for 572 passengers, but provision also is to be made to carry 3,000 tons of cargo, though the boats primarily are to be passenger carriers.

The announcement concerning the new ships that was sent to the Shanghai office of the line said that contracts are to be let within the coming weeks.

'Y' HEALTH MOVE IS PROGRESSING

Classes Formed In Seven Localities With Big Attendance

The Y.M.C.A. health campaign is getting up speed and will be on high in a few weeks if they can keep up the pace started this week.

Sunday afternoon health classes were organised in four public markets, two more on Monday and another one yesterday making a total of seven already going. The attendance averaged over 100 at each place.

The first lesson is on Health. It is shown that a healthy person lives longer and is stronger and happier than the weak. To keep oneself healthy and strong shows a love for parents, a love for country, a love for ones fellow men and indicates real self-respect. This lesson also emphasises the value of the sun as a health giver and a germ and disease destroyer. Illustrations are used to show what a great friend to man the planet is. Then the campaign sign is shown and explained. It is the well known "Red Triangle" with the sun in the center. Before the class closed each student is asked to draw a single picture of the sun.

Simple as the lessons may appear, the entertaining way in which the facts are presented by the trained teachers makes the classes most attractive and they hold the audience well.

The Y.M.C.A. has issued an offer to all schools, churches and other public institutions to help them to start health improvement in their neighborhood. Those desiring such help are requested to call at the boy's department of the Y.M.C.A., 120 Szechuen Road. Sample literature will also be furnished upon request.

East China Records Broken

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanking, May 24.—The National Teachers College at Nanking held its annual track and field meet Saturday, under ideal conditions of weather, before 5,000 spectators from the different schools and colleges of the city.

The college track was in fine condition and the competition in all events was close. Two East China records were broken. Kyung Chao-chuan cleared the bar in the high jump at 5 feet 7 inches which is better than the present Eastern Olympic record, and Tsiang Shan-tsin pole-vaulted 9 feet 9½ inches also a record for China.

S. H. Wang was the individual champion, with 24 points, with C. C. Kyung second, with 21, and S. T. Tsiang third, with 18.

The remarkable running of T. T. Yuen, who won the mile, half and quarter mile, and placed in the hundred, was one of the features of the day.

Besides the track events, there were interesting drills given by the Boy Scouts from the Primary School, who were the police for the day, and by the Middle School in calisthenics and boxing drills, while the work of the College team in Chinese boxing drew round after round of applause, they showed in fine form the traditional forms of offense and defense, both with and without weapons.

Posthumous Novel By Mrs. Humphry Ward

Harvest. By Mrs. Humphry Ward. With frontispiece. Dodd, Mead and Co.

The recent death of Mrs. Humphry Ward lends an additional sad appropriateness to the title of this her latest novel, soon to be published, "Harvest." The tale itself is a story of that English countryside Mrs. Ward knew so well and loved so dearly, but it is also a story of that English countryside under the new aspects, the changed conditions and altered human relationships, developed after four years of war. For the date of the tale is the Summer and Autumn of 1918, when the Germans were retreating before the steady advance of the triumphant Allies and those who stayed at home reaped the greatest harvest ever gathered in England. And it was a harvest due in very great measure to the women of England. The girls of the Land Army, the women foresters who did all the measuring and marked every log there in the lumber camp, doing their part energetically and well, lend color and novelty to the book, one of the most interesting parts of which is a description of the same lumbering operations where "all the payments of the camp, the wages paid, the sums earned by the trolley contractor who takes them to the station, the whole finance, in fact, depends on the women." And the men who worked beside them were "charming to the girls! Chivalrous, kind, everything they should be." Only the German prisoners, billeted near by, jeered whenever they dared at the khaki coats and breeches the women wore. Which, of course, was only what was to be expected of the hoches.

HEROINE RENTS A FARM

The heroine of the novel, Rachel Henderson, is a woman in the late twenties, who, after a course in an agricultural college, rents a place known as "Great End Farm" sets to work to run it in partnership with Janet Leighton, one of her fellow-students, a woman a few years older than herself. They are the best of friends, but beyond the fact that she had spent a good deal of her life in Canada, Janet knows little or nothing of Rachel's history, and Rachel has frankly told her that she has a secret which she intends never to reveal. The past, so Rachel declares and often persuades herself to believe, is dead. She means to begin a new life, leaving behind her all the ugliness of the old. For though she passionately assures Janet that she is "not a bad woman," there had been in that secret past of hers much of sordidness and even of horror. But Janet accepts her quite simply, and all the district around the little market town of Millsborough, though rather amused at first at the idea of a woman farmer, soon learns to respect her energy, good sense and capability. And because she is handsome and alluring, as well as energetic and capable, Captain Ellesborough, the good-looking, finely bred young American, an expert forester, who had had a great deal of experience in Canada, soon begins to do more than merely respect and admire her. And Janet and the others look on with smiling approval at what seems to them a very pretty romance.

But Rachel was wrong in believing that the past was indeed past and gone. On the contrary it was still quite thoroughly active, and chance brought, firs to this especial district of Brookshire and then together, the two men who each knew a part of the truth. And so pain came, and the love and faith and generosity of the young American were put to a very severe test. Of the way in which he met it, and of the tragedy which ensued, yet which was essentially no tragedy at all, if we are to believe that "majestical Pan" judged fairly and gave a real reward to Pheidippides, the novel tells.

THE NEW ENGLAND

Written in that smoothly flowing style to which Mrs. Ward's readers have so long been accustomed, the book, while not indeed equal to her best, shows no falling off from the standard set by her recent work, but on the contrary rises somewhat above it. The pictures of those scenes "typical of a new England," scenes in which, "women governing—and women serving—they were all alike making their way through new paths to new ends," are sympathetically drawn, and the sketches of the superstitious old laborers who represent the ancient order supply the needed contrast. Although "Harvest," while not a war, is a wartime novel, it is one written in and about the hours of victory. The American Captain Ellesborough describes "the huge convoy with which he had himself come over; and that amazing, that incredible march across 3,000 miles of sea and land which every day was pouring into the British Isles and so into France some 15,000 men—the flower of American manhood, come to the rescue of the world." And so the whole tone of the book is one of cheerfulness and hope. Rachel suffers, it is true, suffers through her own wrong-doing, her yielding to the temptations that surround those who "are not strong enough for the wrestle that Fate sets them," but she has her "one supreme moment," when she and her lover stand together on the heights—the heights from which they are never permitted to descend or fall.

The novel contains some lovely pictures of the English country, pictures richly mellow in tone, like the soft deep colors of that field where the figures of the gleaners cast "long shadows on the gold and purple carpet of the stubble." And then there are the portraits of Rachel, a veritable Ceres, "a radiant daughter of air and earth," standing erect in her wagon on the day of the harvest festival, or directing and sharing the work about the farm, helping to reap the harvest which was to aid in the defeat of the Germans. And so though in one sense the forces of evil, incarnate in Roger Delane, triumph in the end, in another those forces are vanquished. For the evil force can bring about material destruction; yet even that destruction but emphasises the victory of the spirit—and of love.

LOUISE MAUNSELL FIELD.

A STRONG FIRST NOVEL

Peter Kindred. By Robert Nathan. Duffield and Co.

Peter Kindred, a first novel, has a pervasive autobiographical suggestiveness. It begins with the boy leaving home to go through Exeter, then Harvard; at Radcliffe he meets the girl he later marries. The story continues through his search for a job after college and his marriage with Joan, who also has her job and sticks to it with the result that she eventually gives birth to a dead child.

Peter is an earnest, Puritanical fellow, who confesses to no sense of humor, but has a nice feeling for beauty. Sensitive, he is neither strongly emotional nor profound. Mr. Nathan, the author, has done the task he set himself honestly and carefully. But the book is so subjective (no character lives as an entity outside the mind of Peter, or Mr. Nathan, and all attempts to follow the lives of the others beyond Peter's presence are faltering) that we shall wait with interest to see whether Mr. Nathan has within him the creative imagination for other books.

Were Peter Kindred not thoroughly typical of a large number of young intellectuals at the present time, the book would have little interest. But he is. He is "high brow," with tortoise shell rimmed glasses, at least so we picture him, and the girl he loves, Joan, wears low heels. Plenty of such couples are turned out by our colleges nowadays, rigid in their principles and conventions. Joan and Peter, for instance, are shockingly idealistic about marriage until an unhealthy nervousness overcomes them both. Joan is one of the many modern women who attempt two jobs; housekeeping and office work, and whose vitality is drained in consequence.

Mr. Nathan cleverly avoids posing any problems or making "propaganda" for his ideas. We are left absolutely to judge for ourselves.

Order

Order. By Claude C. Washburn. Duffield and Co. $2. (Gold).

The novel of character when well done is a thing of fascinating variety. In it we get not only the endless complexities of people seen by themselves and in relation to one another and to their environment, but also the added complexity of the author's own personality, so that the novel adventure, unless it be at the same time a novel character, is a somewhat stereotyped affair in comparison. And Claude C. Washburn's new book, "Order," is a character novel of a very high type indeed, at once subtle and dramatic, thoughtful and interesting and very well written. Its philosophy of life, the theme which pervades the book and gives to it its title, is never permitted to become didactic, but is so blended in with the characters and events that one never loses the feeling of witnessing a peculiarly absorbing scene of the human comedy, rich in that keen awareness of the ironies of life which always distinguishes the writer who is in the best sense of the word sophisticated. In spite of the interest of the so to speak surface story, Mr. Washburn's book is one which will appear less to the very young than to the experienced reader, who can bring to its appreciation some knowledge of human motives, human inconsistencies and the effect of surroundings and of the "matters of course" of their lives upon people's actions and rebellions and submissions. The shades of temperament, and the small, apparently accidental, incidents which result in "the little less, and what worlds away!" are subtletics Mr. Washburn delights in, yet never overdoes.

The scene of the book is laid in Maryille, a small residence town made up almost entirely of the homes of prosperous men whose business is in the nearby city. Such a town is, of course, the very quintessence of "order," order which has only too often crystallised into a set of conventions, until the rules by which lives are governed have become matters less of morals than of conventions and the expected. When Annette Cornish is confronted with the great crisis of her life, the seemingly contradictory way in which she meets it comes from the fact that "whatever innate sense of right and wrong Annette possessed was untrained; obedience to order stood in its place." And Peter, even in the midst of his disappointment, appreciates that it is, indeed, "tremendously ironic" that in the height of his anger Mr. Cornish should quite unconsciously do the conventional thing is in itself a violation of all the ordinary regulations of his existence. Of all those who are thus order-bound only one, Elsie Cook, the shopgirl in whose hard little soul there was just one solitary crack, ever breaks away; and she does so only in her actions, never in her convictions.

It is with the sudden, dramatic arrival of a young Englishman, Peter Gresham, son of an American mother, that the tale begins. As Marville is the embodiment of Order, so is Peter the embodiment of Disorder, of romance, of the unexpected. He has not the least intention of doing any one any harm, he does not want to hurt any one. Indeed, he suffers keenly himself when he hurts other people, and his sympathies are quick and generous. Yet he leaves a trail of destruction behind him wherever he goes. For he is in truth as little free, he the impulsive, the uncalculating, the disorderly, as any one of those Marville people who are slaves to Order. "If they were locked up in a tawdry house, Peter was swept away on a devastating flood." It is one of the notable things about Mr. Washburn's book that it is large-minded enough thus to see both sides of a great question, and to set forth plainly the truth, out of which so many apparent discrepancies arise—that though Disorder is the romantic and the colorful, it is Order which is the creative force. Holding a brief neither for one nor for the other, he presents that which occurs when the two come into contact. His Peter Gresham, the leading character of the book, is living romance, quick, imaginative, intelligent, full of an intense and vivid life. He fascinates the reader just as he did the people whom he met, but there is no glossing over the fact that there are times when it is quite impossible to admire him. Capable of heroic behavior, he nevertheless did some wrong and some quite contemptible things and that without any touch of remorse. And the author has not attempted to gloss any of it over; he presents Peter as he is, with his faults and his virtues, a living man, vivid, high-spirited, courageous—and never deliberate.

Annette, the vague and shadowy, delicately charming, is scarcely less well portrayed, and in sharp contrast to her stands Elsie Cook, the crude and passionate and ambitious, unlike Annette in every way save one—they both belong to Order. The minor characters are each clearly sketched, so that one feels quite sure that the author knows all about them and their lives, though he shows them here only as they affected and were affected by Peter Gresham. Written in a leisurely way, the novel never drags. When Mr. Washburn writes at length it is because he has something to say, not because he is trying to cover the greatest possible number of pages. His comments on America and on American life as seen by his English hero, his analyses of his characters' thoughts and feelings and tangled motives are often shrewd and always interesting, and his style is excellent in its touches of irony and its careful finish.

DOSTOEVSKY FANTASTIC

An Honest Thief and Other Stories. By Fyodor Dostoevsky. The Macmillan Company.

Caprices of Dostoevsky's somber fancy are the short stories which make up the ninth volume, entitled An Honest Thief, of Constance Garnett's translation of his works. (Macmillan).

Perhaps Uncle's Dream, which is the longest of the stories, is also the best worth considering. It has the old comic situation of the ambitious mother trying to marry her daughter off well, with the environment of the small town and its gossip. The desired part is a senile prince, false-whiskered, painted and corseted, who chances to visit the town. The climax is a scene where the mother finds herself frustrated publicly in the presence of all the gossips. It is broadly, wildly, deliriously humored; the Dostoevsky version of the slapstick; the crescendo with its billingsgate lines might be played in a circus ring.

The distinctions of Uncle's Dream are a shrewd scrupulousness in working out the human motives, an almost scientific analysis of the mother's match-making technic.

Another story, The Crocodile, gives Dostoevsky opportunity to satirize the workings of human vanity, which he treats so powerfully in his novels. A man swallowed by a crocodile revels in the notoriety of his situation and exploits it, screaming wisdom through the reptile's hide to the crowds of spectators.

But with all the grotesqueness in which he revels in these stories the great and gloomy Russian never goes far from his constant purpose to show something of what, as he sees it, humanity and human frailties make of life.

SHORT AND SOUR
BY 'BUGS' BAER

The last healthy reaction in Wall Street left the public cutting out paper dolls for the domestic and foreign trade.

* * * *

While waiting for the wool to grow back over the lambs' eyes, the big-time operators are picking on each other like ukuleles. Having shipped all the tinsel and knick-knacks off the public's Xmas tree, the brokers naturally have to hang around until the suckers' bankrolls recover their second wind. The high cost of income blanks finds mischief for idle mitts to do. And while hanging around waiting for the mice to nibble at the smoked cheese, the brokers get so groggy that they mistake each other for prospects. They grow fifty crops of suckers a year down in Wall Street, but between crops the boys pass away the time playing one another with loaded checkers. Nice, friendly little games. Just as sanitary as carrying a load of gunpowder through hell.

* * * *

After a sapp tries Wall Street once, he pulls in his head every time he pipes a guy looking for lumber. The lambs will recover from that 1919 healthy reaction, provided the transmission doesn't drop out of the wheel chair and they keep their bankrolls in the same pocket with the camphor balls. While waiting for the flies to come back to the poisoned olives, the brokers are stealing each other's marbles. With the nights growing shorter, the daylight robberies are increasing. That little corner in Stutz is merely a sunshine comedy among the brokers who were trying to kill a little time without leaving any fingerprints.

* * * *

It started out as a little white chip game with an intermission for lunch. Anybody conversant with the history of Ali Baba might have piped that the Ryans didn't take any salt with their sandwiches. Stutz soon developed into a father-and-son tournament, with young Mr. Ryan holding aces back to back. The shorts were between the nut cracker and the lemon squeezer. In revenge, the Stock Exchange pushed Stutz out of the home garage, but Mr. Ryan comes right back by parking it on the Curb.

* * * *

The high light in this transaction is that it is the only Wall Street pogrom in which no custard pies were cooked for the public. In all other healthy reactions the innocent bystander has been guilty. Those not familiar with the pyrotechnical details will be wised up. Wall Street is the place where they relieve the tension on the rubber band which surrounds bank rolls. It prolongs the life of the rubber band. The Stock Exchange is an institution where they play roulette without a wheel, pinochle without cards and Ethiopian tiddly-winks without the dice. It is a legitimate business. Betting that another guy is wrong isn't gambling, unless he happens to be right. A short guy is a gent who sells something he hasn't got to a guy who doesn't want it, but knows that the short hasn't got it. When the buyer calls the short, the short person lays down a hand in which a Fed League rain check is the high card.

* * * *

The buyer realizes that his only mistake was in smoking a pipe instead of a police whistle. The Stock Exchange calls the whole transaction a corner and throws Stutz out into the dry, dry world. A corner is a place where even a rat will fight, but a rabbit remembers he has legs. The shorts are using what legs they have now and growing new ones every jump. The Ryans had a profit of eighty million in dollars, but now it looks as if they will have to count it up in clam shells or empty spools. By taking Stutz off the market, the Exchange has robbed the shorts of something they never had and deprived 'em of the refined privacy of the county poorhouse.

* * * *

The only thing queer about the whole deal is that the boys wouldn't share the poisoned olives with the public. It's the only time in the history of the Street where they didn't sell tickets for the panic.

Fly's Danger To Humanity Shown

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanking, May 24.—An interesting movie on public health was screened by the City Y. M. C. A. on May 15. The machine was borrowed from Shanghai. Owing to that fact that the building cannot that night was set aside for students only. A large number of students, particularly girls, attended.

Dr. Macklin, Official Advisor on public health to the Police, acted as an interpreter in connection with the picture for the audience.

The movie began with the life history of the fly. In the scene it was shown how he traveled from one place to another, and next, how he killed a child.

The concluding feature of the program was a series of suggestive methods of public sanitation and home sanitation as well.

Anti-Opium Body Will Meet Friday

The Shanghai branch of the Internation Anti-Opium Association of China will hold its first annual meeting on Friday, the 28th. inst. at the Chinese Y.M.C.A. commencing at 5:15 p.m. A report of the year's work will be given, and officers elected for the ensuing year. It is expected that Dr. C. T. Wang and Dr. W. W. Peter will give short addresses. Sympathisers who may not be members are invited to attend the meeting.

OVERCOMING INFLUENZA.

How After-Effects are Dispelled.

The most serious difficulty that confronts all who fall victims of influenza is the problem of ridding their systems of the after-effects of the disease. Even in those cases where the attack is light, the after-effects are obstinate and severe. Normally bright and cheerful people become depressed and melancholy, their hair falls out, food causes distress and sleep is broken and unrestful. They develop "nerves," and sudden noises startle them.

The blood is the body's most dependable weapon in the fight against disease, and when the enemy is as violent as influenza the blood generally becomes spent and impure.

No time should be lost in strengthening the system, and at this time a reliable blood-builder, such as Dr. Williams' pink pills, is the best remedy for regaining health. Dr. Williams' pink pills contain the necessary elements that go towards increasing and enriching the blood supply, and while they are doing this the starved nerves are fed and toned up by the new blood. At the same time the tonic properties of these pills strengthen the stomach, and make digestion easy.

If you are suffering from the after-effects of influenza, or are in weak health owing to any other cause traceable to impure watery blood or disordered nerves, NOW is the time to begin Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people. They are obtainable from druggists everywhere, or post free, one bottle for $1.50, six for $8. from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

New P. and O. Vessels 'Naldera' and 'Narkunda'

London, April 5.—There are now lying in Tilbury Dock two mail and passenger steamers, the Naldera and Narkunda, fresh from the hands of their builders which are believed to be the most luxurious and attractive vessels yet designed for the Indian and Australian trades. The Naldera will be despatched for Australian ports via Bombay on April 10 and the Narkunda to Bombay via Egypt and Aden a fortnight later.

The Naldera was launched from the yard of Messrs. Laird and Co., Greennock (since amalgamated with the firm of Harland and Wolff, Ltd.), on December 29, 1917. Although intended for completion as a passenger and mail steamer she was, owing to the exigencies of the war, temporarily fitted out as a cargo steamer and later converted for use first as an aeroplane carrier and then as an armed merchant cruiser; but has now been entirely re-conditioned for the service for which she was originally projected. She is of 15,800 gross tons, length 605 feet, breadth 67 feet 2 inches, moulded depth (main deck to keel) 47 feet 4 inches and is driven by two sets of quadruple expansion reciprocating engines developing 18,000 horse power and a sea-speed of 18½ knots.

DINING SALOONS

The first and second dining saloons are respectively at the forward and after ends of the midship portion of the main deck with elaborately equipped kitchens and culinary offices between. Both dining saloons extend through the width of the ship, and all possible care has been expended in planning their lighting and ventilation. On the main deck, aft, are second saloon cabins and bath rooms. The upper deck is entirely occupied by first and second class cabins liberally interspersed with bath rooms, and there are, besides, on this deck, six bedrooms-de-luxe with bath rooms, etc., en suite.

First-class bedstead cabins for two persons fill the middle portion of the hurricane deck, on the after part of which are the second saloon smoking and music rooms and, at the forward end, a double range of single or two-bed cabins. Cabin ports on this deck all open under the shelter of the promenade deck, amidships there is a continuous range of bath-rooms.

All cabins throughout the ship have lavatory basins with continuous water supply, wardrobes, and, in many cases, writing tables. Where the cabins are double-banked, they are arranged on the tandem principle, so that every cabin, whether of the first or second class, has its own port-hole or portholes opening to the outside air.

WIDE PROMENADE DECKS

The promenade decks, both first and second class, strike one as being wider and longer than are commonly seen, and that this is not merely an impression is proved by the structure of the upper part of the vessel which shows the promenade deck supported on brackets which splay outwards beyond the limits of the bulwarks, suggesting, constructively, what is known in architecture as an oversailing upper story. The small lateral extension above the brackets, multiplied longitudinally, makes an immense difference in space and has been secured without the slightest sacrifice of any essential structural quality.

All the public rooms of the Naldera are panelled in dull finished brown oak, with the exception of the first class dining saloon, the walls of which have been painted to imitate the exact appearance and slight variation in tone of old ivory. In pleasant contrast with these vellum-like walls, are the movable chairs in natural colored oak, with oval backs, pierced center panels; the seats in green morocco leather, whose design recalls but excels the work of Heppelwhite.

COLORFUL DECORATION

Round the oval well which rises from the center of the saloon is a riotously painted deep frieze by Professor Gerald Moira, in gay and animated tints, where nymphs and dryads disport themselves in woodland surroundings under the bright lemon-colored sky of an Eastern sunset. The treatment of this painting is broad and effective, and when it is illuminated by the scores of electric lights placed beneath it and hidden from below by a cornice moulding, the whole of the frieze is a blaze of gorgeous coloring.

Moreover, the music room, which surrounds this central well on the promenade deck, two decks above the dining saloon, also receives its main effect from Professor Moira's work which, indeed, dominates the decorative scheme of this part of the ship, the quiet and reticent treatment of walls and ceilings contributing a rich but subdued frame work to the picture.

The music saloon is divided from the divan by a light wooden bulkhead with plate glass doors. Generally, both apartments are designed and furnished in a style which combines elegance and comfort in a superlative degree. At the after end of the promenade deck is the first saloon smoking room the furniture of which is in the style of William III and Mary. Here are deep, roomy lounges and big arm-chairs upholstered in green morocco leather, the walls being panelled between fluted pilasters having carved caps. At its after end, the first smoking saloon opens on to a large sheltered verandah cafe, and there are, at the after end of the divan two smaller wing verandahs with appropriate furniture. Forward of the smoking saloon on this deck are twenty single-bed cabins with abundant bath-room accommodation. Above the smoking saloon, on the boat deck, is a second verandah cafe facing aft and overlooking the fine sheltered second-class promenade on the poop deck.

MAHOGANY FURNITURE

The second class dining and smoking saloons are beautifully panelled and mahogany chairs in the style of Queen Anne, with tall back and center splats, inlaid with the monogram of the Company, are part of the furnishing equipment.

A striking feature of the Naldera is the gymnasium, which is situated on the promenade deck between the divan and the smoking saloon. Here those inclined to exercise will find such novelities as an electrically-driven riding horse, a double cycleracing machine, hydraulic rowing machine, adjustable punch ball, pulley-weight exerciser, natural steering wheel with artificial resistances, wrist exercisers, dumb-bells, foils, etc. together with a weighing machine and a height recorder.

One of the most fascinating apartments of the vessel is the chart-room, where none but those concerned with the navigation of the ship may penetrate. Here are up-to-date devices for the working of the vessel at sea. A tell-tale board from which current is turned on from a series of switches to the mast-head lights and the stern light (white) the port and starboard lights (red and green respectively) at the same time illuminates corresponding miniature lights on the switch-board; if by any mischance any one of the main lights should cease to gleam its tell-tale correspondent also becomes extinguished and an alarm bell is sounded in the chart-room. Above the telemotor steering gear is a periscopic prism which projects the compass card as a vertical face at the level of the helmsman's eyes, so that he may at the same time view the card, the course, and the waters through which the vessel is advancing; chiefly, it obviates the need of stooping over the compass card, which is balanced horizontally in the binnacle below.

MECHANICAL DEVICES

In another bridge-indicator miniature vertical pistons, red and green, actuated from the port and starboard engines themselves, reflect the action of the engines and ensure accord with the directions transmitted from the bridge. Telephonic communication is provided between the bridge and the various departments of the ship, the powerful instruments magnifying the human voice so that replies can be heard at a considerable distance.

Outside the chart-room the expanse of the bridge itself excites mild surprise but it is in keeping with the rest of the ship, whose abiding characteristic, from the cabins of the captain, officers and passengers to the quarters of the crew—is generous spacing. The Naldera sounds the knell of the old days when two of more junior officers shared a cabin of limited dimensions with a denial of personal privacy; on the chart-room level each officer has his own apartment; and the range of officers' cabins is completed by bath-rooms, etc. en suite. Turning one's eyes aft over the expanse of the boat deck one see ranges of roomy, substantial and shapely lifeboats which challenge the statements—from a naval pen—in a recent magazine article as to the character of this provision in liners.

Marine Changes

China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company—Mr. H. C. Andersen appointed third engineer of the Hsintah.

Indo-China Steam Navigation Company—Acting chief mate of the Tungwo, Mr. H. P. Jensen, to supernumerary chief mate of the Kutwo; Mr. A. R. D. S. Smith appointed supernumerary second mate of the Loongwo; from home leave, Mr. H. T. S. Pellew, to master of the Changwo; master of the Changwo, Mr. E. B. ## China Political Notes From Chinese Papers

The Government has issued a circular telegram, making public the whole text of the reply to Japan and recounting the procedures of diplomacy that have been followed. The governors are ordered to inform the merchants and people in order to remove all misgivings.

The Waichiaopu has decided to submit the Shantung question to the League of Nations. Discussion and preparations are now being made.

The President has rescripted on the second resignation tendered by Chin Yun-peng, "Ten days' more leave is hereby granted."

The government, seeing that the establishment of the Siberian Republic includes the leased territory of the Chinese Eastern Railway involving special interests of the country, proposes to send an independent reply and not to follow the actions of other powers.

Wu Pei-fu's withdrawal from Hunan has given rise to many rumors in Hankow. One report has it that Lan Tien-wei and Pah Wen-wei have declared their readiness to help General Tan Yen-kai. The authorities have already taken precautionary measures in an unostentatious way.

Tsao Kun reports that he has despatched Chao Yu-ko to Hunan and requests the Government to appoint a high official to that province to supervise the withdrawal of troops. The Government thinks that Tsao should be held responsible to exercise supervision and that no other official need be appointed.

The proposal by the Waichiaopu to establish Chinese legations in Mexico, Cuba, Sweden, Norway and Bolivia has been sanctioned by the Cabinet.

Japanese bandits have been infesting the area of the Chinese Eastern Railway. The Japanese Commander has seized this as a pretext to complain of the inefficiency of the Chinese police and to propose the re-instating of the Russian police; but all other Allied Powers are against such a proposal.

The Southern Army in Hunan is advancing to attack and it seems impossible to avoid bloodshed. The joint office of War and General Staff is preparing the plan of campaign. But the report about Tuan Chi-jui himself leading an expedition has been ascertained to be untrue.

MILITARY OFFICERS DRIVEN FROM RUSSIA

(China Press Correspondence)

Kaifeng, May 21.—There passed through Chengchow yesterday on route to Peking the following persons after a seven months hegira from Omsk, having been pursued by the Bolsheviki: Capt. Phelps Hodges and Lieut. P. Moss (both British), Capt. de Kerangat (French), Messrs. Gordon-Smith (Scotch) and R. J. Morgan (Australian), mining engineers, along with two French soldiers, one Russian soldier and two German servants (prisoners of war).

These formed part of the Military Mission form Sinkiang and had to flee for their lives. They report great hardships for months having had to commandeer what they needed in the way of food and clothing. They tell a thrilling story. Many times they were in danger of starving and freezing until they came to where missionaries live.

Father Rouscel Dies After Short Illness

(China Press Correspondence)

Hofeihsien, Anhwei, May 21.—Father Rouscel of the French Catholic Mission of this city, died at 5 o'clock this morning of pneumonia, after an illness of a week or ten days. Father Rouscel had lived in this city for about twelve years. He had made many friends and was held in high esteem by the people of the city. During his stay here the most cordial relationships have existed between the Protestant missionaries and Father Rouscel.

Father Rouscel had been in China for more than thirty years and passed away at the age of 64. His presence with his kindly smile and pleasant good humor that always went with his ministrations and social greetings will be missed both by the Chinese and the foreign community.

Chicago University Baseball Team May Play Series Here

Arrangements Set In Motion At Meeting Yesterday To Bring Them Here

It is probable that the crack baseball team of the University of Chicago which in recent weeks has been meeting the best teams in Japan will come to Shanghai for a series of games next month. It is intended also to arrange a series for the collegians in Tientsin.

As the result of action taken at a meeting of the directors of the Shanghai baseball club yesterday, Dr. N. L. Downs, president of the club, forwarded to Japan a cable in which conditions laid down by the management of the Chicago players for a series in Shanghai are accepted. It is believed a reply closing the arrangement will be received shortly.

The single obstacle in the way of the plan to bring the Chicago team to China is the fact it is under instructions to return to the United States early in July, but it has been found that the Chicago men will be unable to carry these out as no accommodations are available for them in boats leaving for America at the time they would have to sail.

Mr. J. E. Doyle of THE CHINA PRESS and a wellknown Shanghai baseball fan, now on his way home on leave, saw the Chicago team in action in Japan and reports that with two good pitchers."

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given your children unless you or your physician know of what it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have frequently prescribed Castoria for common ailments of children with good results."
W. A. CRANDALL, M. D.,

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine and, aside from my own family experience, I have, in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."
WM. J. MCCRANN, M. D.,
Omaha, Neb.

"I find your Castoria is very beneficial in the treatment of children's ailments."
F. DAVIS, M. D.,
Chicago, Ill.

"I object to what are called patent medicines, where the makes alone know what stuff is put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use in proper cases. I judge it to be a very useful, as well as harmless family medicine."

Important Notice

My late grandfather, Mr. Chuan Sien, (筠仙公) had, in the thirteenth year of Kwang Shu, bought twenty shares of the Chen Chi Woo Insurance Co., (仁濟和保險公司) Nos. 16140/59, with an interest Book. On the 5th day of 7th moon of the Kee Vee year (己未), my servant, Yue Tseng Yung, was ordered and brought with him the said share certificates, by traveling in the train from Changsha to Hankow, for drawing interest. While he was at Li-lu in the night, the said certificates were stolen and immediately after the case was reported to the Railway Station for recovery, without trace.

Having requested the Magistrate and Chamber of Commerce jointly the said Insurance Company, Shanghai, was advised of the loss and to issue new Certificates.

I hereby further declare the nullification of the original, both in Chinese and Foreign Newspapers of Shanghai and Hankow.

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Braud write as follows in their exchange circular for week ending May 26:

Exchange:—The London price of silver since last week shows a rise of ¾d. and 1⅝d. for "Spot" and "Forward" respectively, the latest quotations being 59½d. and 59⅝d. The rise is probably due to purchases by Shanghai against fair offerings of Export paper and resales of T.T. on London by Gold Dealers who sold at as high as 6/1½. Silver bought at even the highest quotation received would lay down silver here at about 5/10½d. At the close the market shows an easier tone which would develop rapidly into weakness on any decline in the price of silver.

Stocks of Sycee and Bar Silver: Sycee and Bar Silver Tls. 40,630,000 a decline of Tls. 770,000.

Chinese and Mexican Dollars $96,150,000 a decline of $2,190,000.

United Staes Dollars $1,277,000 unchanged.

Estimated total value in Taels 61,000,000 a decline of Tls. 1,700,000.

Bryan Shows Gain In Nebraska Count

Increases His Margin Slightly For A Place Among The Democratic Delegates

Omaha, April 22.—With a little more than two-thirds of the precincts of Nebraska heard from, Senator Hiram Johnson is leading Major General Leonard Wood in the Republican preference primary by 14,241 votes. The result of the tabulation of 1,266 precincts out of 1,849 in the State, including Douglas County (Omaha), shows: Johnson 47,888; Wood, 33,647; Pershing, 21,591. William J. Bryan, who is running in fourth place for delegate at large to the San Francisco Convention, continued to show slight gains over Berge, a Bryan candidate, who is in fifth place. On the face of returns thus far received Neville and Shallenberger, Hitchcock delegates, lead the field of eight candidates with Stephens the high man of the Bryan candidates, in third place. The vote of 994 precincts shows:

Neville (H.), 26,688; Shallenberger (H.), 26,664; Stephens (B.), 26,272; Bryan, 22,686; Berge (B.), 22,295; Thomas (B.), 20,845; Noble (H.), 18,937; McNeny (H.), 18,861.

Republican Congressmen who sought renomination in Tuesday's primary are leading their nonpartisan League opponents in the three Congressional districts where there were contests, according to incomplete returns compiled by The Lincoln Daily Star.

The vote was exceptionally slow in arriving at the offices of the newspapers handling the count. Figures thus far tabulated include complete returns from 36 counties, partial returns from 47 counties, and no returns from ten counties.

Figures 395 Shells Were Fired In War To Kill One Person

Paris, April 22.—Dr. Mercher, a member of the French Academy of Medicine, after an extended investigation has determined that during a period of five months in 1917 a total of 3,090,000 shells fell on the front of the three French armies.

The shells, Dr. Mercher estimates, killed 13,265 men and wounded 55,412. According to his figures it took a total of 395 shells to kill one man and half as many to wound one.

Siccawei Weather Reports

25.—The northern depression is divided in two centers; the one reaches Hokkaido, the other passes near Tokio Barometric maximum in our whole Valley; high pressures on the Pacific. Cyclonic whirls around both depressions; light and variable breezes with calms along our coasts. Fine and warm day in China; some rain in N Formosa.

26.—The weather is overcast, but fine and cool. The pressure decreases more decidedly. Fairly fresh SE breezes. Little rain about 8 a.m.

What Germany Must Pay

AT last we have something definite concerning the amount of war indemnity Germany is to be asked to pay. In an address to the Sub-Finance Committee of the French Chamber of Deputies, M. Millerand confirmed the report that the minimum had been fixed at 120,000,000,000 marks, gold, with interest probably not under 5 percent, "plus one percent on account of redemption." The French Premier went on to say that this indemnity would not include the supply of coal, material or animals which Germany is to give up in order to replace similar stocks, destroyed or stolen.

Of the cash indemnity, France is to receive 55 percent, Britain 25 percent and the remaining 20 percent is to be divided among Italy, Belgium and Serbia.

One hundred twenty billion marks gold is approximately 30,000,000,000 gold dollars, of which sum France will receive $16,500,000,000: Britain $7,500,000,000 and the other three countries $6,000,000,000 between them.

The annual interest to start with will be 6,200,000,000 marks, gold, or about $1,550,000,000 gold.

This indemnity is not as large as it should be. It will not make good the war expenditures of the countries concerned, not by many billions. Great Britain alone, we believe, expended about $40,000,000,000 and the United States, which gets no part of the indemnity, shot away $30,000,000,000—the total of the indemnity which Germany is asked to pay—in the the short time she was in the war.

But small as the indemnity is, there is a very serious doubt in expert financial quarters, as to Germany's ability to pay it. There have been reports that the payments are to be scattered over a period of 33 years. If that is so, Germany ought to be able to finance the debt.

With the immediate effects in Germany of M. Millerand's announcement we need not concern ourselves, as we shall know them in a very few days. The Germans may be expected to protest, but in the end, if the Allies insist, they will pay and pay in full. On the whole the Germans probably are getting off more easily than they expected. Estimates of the indemnity to be asked have ranged from 22 up to 90 billion gold dollars.

Unclimbed Mountains

By WILLIAM T. PALMER
(Late Editor The Fell And Rock Journal)

The generation of climbers now fast passing away proved abundantly that no mountain and no rock-peak is unclimbable. Outside the central Himalayas there is no visible unclimbed summit which has not been trodden by the foot of the conqueror.

The great Everest, which tops the 29,000ft. contour, is forbidden ground because, as "The Abode of Snow," the wild natives of the Upper Ganges adore it as a god. Kinchinjunga, which rises nearly to 29,000ft. lies outside British territory, though well visible from Darjeeling, and cannot be approached owing to old treaty conditions. Thus religion and politics add effective bulwarks to the natural difficulties of the world's two highest mountains.

Expert climbers certainly do not agree that either mountain is unconquerable; the high plateau of snow east of Kinchinjunga giving fair access to its final summit. The last rock pinnacles, about 25,000ft. up Everest, seem a real difficulty, but there is a maxim, built upon generations of experience, that such difficulties vanish on close attack. However, others just as formidable usually appear in some direction and keep up the resistance to attack.

With the two greatest peaks beyond artificial barriers, the Himalayan climber must go farther west to the peaks around Kashmir. Here one of the highest, topping 28,000ft., is Mount Godwin-Austen, or in Ordnance Survey dicta K-2.

A long, wearisome expedition is necessary to reach the foot of its slopes. Everything has to be carried up, camp after camp, by native bearers, and several expeditions have had to be abandoned long before the climbers could make an attack.

However in regard to the future, the meteorological data necessary for success are being largely accumulated, and no mountain student of mountaineering would be surprised to hear at any time that the greatest "free peak" in the Himalaya had been conquered.

In other continents every mighty peak has been climbed. In Africa the mysterious "Mountains of the Moon" (mapped accurately by the ancients, then lost to sight for a thousand years) were located again as a white wall above the tropical mists and conquered.

Kilimanjaro, Kenia, went beneath the feet of the last generation, and in South Africa not a rocky range remains to defy the young climber.

In Abyssinia there are wilderness mountains at present unreached, but their heights are not superlative, and the difficulties are of politics and ordinary travel rather than of rock, ice, and snow problems.

In the center of Asia—on the confines of China—are still unclimbed peaks, but their roll is being steadily reduced. Whymper and Conway made great assaults on the volcanoes of the Andes, and their work has been completed by American expeditions, while the Rockies from the Yukon down to Panama have had their beards plucked by daring men.

There is, indeed little faith among geographers that any mountain of superlative elevation remains to be discovered. Himalayan climbers however, are inclined to believe that the much triangulated summit of Mount Everest fixed at 29,000ft., will not prove to be the world's apex though the mountains in the Kashmir wilderness will not reach the next thousand-feet contour.

How Italy Is Meeting Problem Of Reconstruction

To Pay Her Enormous War Debt, As Well As Current Expenses, The Country Has Inaugurated A Radical And Far-Reaching Program Of Taxation Including A Direct Levy On Capital

No explanation of the fall of European exchange is complete without an observation on the annual deficits caused by the excess of expenditure over income, which is unhappily the case with the Treasuries of our former allies and associates. The Annalist showed last week that the recent rise in sterling was largely due to the psychological effect of clever press agent work on the part of English officials backed by the shipment of a relatively small amount of gold in comparison with the enormous sums owing to us on balance of trade, interest on moneys advanced by the Government and the approaching maturity of the Anglo-French loan. The daily newspapers report frequently on changes and additions to French resources, and budget speeches by those responsible for French finances are often reported in full. German reconstruction has more of an academic than a financial interest. Our war claims against the Hohenzollerns are amply covered through the acquisition of the interned ships and the seizures of the Alien Property Custodian.

It is said that there is no sentiment in business, yet impressions and personalities play an important part in a credit rating. There is a halo around the English sovereign and it exudes an atmosphere of opulence. Many may recall the ceremony in connection with the conversion of a letter of credit into cash in London. Invariably, at all banks, the metal instead of being counted out was weighed on a scale and then shoveled toward the new owner.

Similarly France is not unknown to our economists. The fact that Paris is the creator of women's fashions has caused the greater part of our people of wealth to be attracted to the sistence of the feminine portion rench metropolis through the in- of their families. The impression g general that the French are a hard-working, thrifty nation. All remember that the world was astonished at the hidden wealth of the Gallic Republic, as evidenced by the rapidity with which the staggering indemnity exacted by Bismarck in 1871 was paid off and the normal business life of the people resumed. There is a sentimental feeling that eventually France will find herself and will repay us the money we willingly advanced during the war.

ITALY'S FINANCIAL SITUATION

But how about Italy? It has always been common talk that Italy is a relatively poor country. The exchange of nationals between the Queen of the Mediterranean and ourselves has been principally of those belonging to the non-wealthy classes. Together with France and Belgium, Italy also suffered heavily through having a large portion of her soil devastated by the invader. Her war expenses in proportion to her wealth were as heavy as those of France and far heavier than those of England. Her trade with us has never been of large proportions. Yet we are vitally interested in her reconstruction, for of the ten billions advanced to the Allies Italy received $1,619,922,872. The table following gives in round figures our loans to the Allies, with the total debt and estimated national wealth of the countries:

| Country | U. S. Loans |
|---|---|
| Belgium | $343,455,000 |
| United Kingdom | 4,277,000,000 |
| France | 3,047,974,000 |
| Italy | 1,619,922,000 |

| Country | *Total Debt, 1919 |

†Estimated.

A study of the Italian financial situation, therefore, is of interest to us for the reason that the Treasury advances of ten billions in Europe are still carried on our books as an asset even though the interest has not been paid, and the possibility of the early repayment of some 16 percent of this amount, and that from one of the poorest of our creditors, cannot fail to be good news to those looking for a decrease in our own rates of Federal taxation. For, without any blaring of trumpets and with no more announcement than a brief paragraph in the cable news, there was inaugurated on January 1, 1920, one of the most radical and far-reaching programs of taxation to which any people victorious in a great war have ever subjected themselves. It consists chiefly in the immediate imposition of the much-discussed and shunned principal of a direct levy on capital, as well as heavy tax on income.

THE COUNTRY'S RESOURCES

The problem to be met by the Italian Minister of the Treasury was to arrange for current expenses and for the reduction of the present national debt of more than 83,000,000,000 lire to its pre-war proportions of 28,000,000,000 lire. The debts to be liquidated consisted of the following items computed in lire:

|---|---|
| Total of pre-war public debt and national loans | 28,497,000,000 |
| Treasury bonds (including issues for military expenses) | 15,961,000,000 |
| Government bonds, 3 and 5 year | 6,745,000,000 |
| Paper circulation of the Government | 11,872,000,000 |
| Allied loans | 19,984,000,000 |
| Other liabilities | 660,000,000 |
| Total debt | 83,719,000,000 |

The estimated population of Italy is 35,000,000. The per capita share of the above debt, therefore, is 2,363 lire, or at normal exchange, $457. At present rates it amounts to less than $100, which is not a large sum, even for a poor country. Counting five persons to a family, it represents a capital investment or mortgage of $2,285 gold on each home.

Against this public debt there were estimated resources of nearly 127,000,000,000 lire, according to the computations in 1914 of Signor Corrado Gini, Professor of Economics and Statistics at the Royal University of Padua.

This estimate was made up as follows, in lire:

|---|---|
| Private wealth | 110,000,000,000 |
| Provinces and communities | 700,000,000 |
| Public charitable institutions | 2,500,000,000 |
| Banks of issue | 3,290,000,000 |
| Savings banks | 350,000,000 |
| Mutual aid societies | 120,000,000 |
| Chambers of commerce | 20,000,000 |
| Churches | 1,000,000,000 |
| Stock companies | 9,000,000,000 |
| Total | 126,980,000,000 |

It must be remembered that the above wealth is based on 1914 values and has not taken into account the abnormal increase in all tangible remaining wealth resulting from the war. To meet this situation the new tax law provides for the following five sources of revenue:

1. The institution of an extraordinary tax on capital varying from 5 to 25 percent payable over a period of thirty years.

2. The institution of a progressive tax on fortunes derived from the war which is to increase and complete the existing legislation on war profits.

3. The reorganisation of direct taxation on incomes by the institution of a new progressive tax on total incomes.

4. The increase of the extraordinary tax on interest and dividends from "bearer" bonds and stocks, already in force since 1918.

5. The increase of taxes on Government transactions and on the sale of goods, particularly those of a luxury character.

The 1919 receipts amounted to 9,498,000,000 lire, although only four and a half billions was expected. This put the Italian Treasury in a more comfortable condition than it had been for years and partly compensated for the loss of revenue from tourists who formerly were in the habit of crowding the resorts at the foot of the Ligurian Alps and the towns surrounding the beautiful lakes of Maggiore, Como and Garda.

NEW TAX ON CAPITAL

The former tax on war profits was levied on all profits from August 1, 1914, to December 31, 1919. This tax, which was supposed to average about 50 percent was found to be insufficient. The new legislation takes away from the profiteer from 10 to 60 percent on the increase of his fortune not already reached, depending on whether this increase exceeds 5 percent or 60 percent. An exemption of 20,000 lire is provided for. This new tribute represents an average levy of about 45 percent on the taxable amount. It is designed to take away a total of 22½ percent of all war profit. Combined with the former tax of 50 percent on this item, 72½ percent is forfeited to the Italian Treasury. As persons enjoying war profits are not supposed to have yet had time to materially change their way of living from their pre-war standing, it has seemed wise to take their gains away from them as quickly as possible. These war fortune taxes are, therfore, all payable in 1920.

The tax on normal capital is very interesting, as it undoubtedly will be studied in its effects should the time come when it will be seemed wise to tax American capital to pay our own war debts. After deducting from each taxpayer's fortune the tax on war profits and then the tax on the increase of fortune due to the war, there will be taken out of the remainder, which is considered to be the individual's normal capital, a new tax, levied upon the original fortune existing prior to the war. To cover those who have invested a part of their fortune abroad in an attempt to escape the new taxes, all citizens must pay the tax upon wealth consisting of properties outside the Kingdom when such properties were not possessed before July 1, 1919. Foreign capital, however, is not subject to the tax on fortunes. This includes remittances from emigrants which are deposited before January 1, 1920, in credit institutions or postal savings banks, or which enter the country after the above date, and foreign securities possessed by foreigners residing within the Kingdom. This tax is designed not only to reach capital profitably employed, but to reach non-productive wealth, such as hunting estates, the homes of the rich, jewels and art treasures.

Every taxpayer must make a return of his wealth by March 31, 1920, specifying all his assets (including cash) and all his liabilities as of January 1. Six years from January 1, 1920, a new return must be filed and similarly at subsequent eight-year periods.

To give the tax the character of an annual contribution for the entire period of its duration, it will be payable in thirty yearly installments based on the original valuations and the revaluation at the end of the eight-year periods. This will tend to extend the levy in part to succeeding generations. The annual rates are listed in the following table, there being an exemption up to 20,000 lire:

| Lire | For 30 Years Percent | Yearly Rate Percent |
|---|---|---|
| 20,000... | 5.00 | 0.167 |
| 50,000... | 5.95 | 0.198 |
| 100,000... | 6.68 | 0.228 |
| 200,000... | 7.73 | 0.258 |
| 500,000... | 9.19 | 0.306 |
| 1,000,000... | 10.47 | 0.349 |
| 2,000,000... | 11.98 | 0.398 |
| 5,000,000... | 14.19 | 0.473 |
| 10,000,000... | 16.18 | 0.539 |
| 20,000,000... | 18.44 | 0.615 |
| 50,000,000... | 21.93 | 0.731 |
| 100,000,000... | 25.00 | 0.833 |

Income taxes which form the third source of revenue follow very closely our own law. Normal taxes, however, are divided into the following four categories:

A. The tax on income derived from capital (real estate, bonds, loans, stocks, etc.) amounts to 18 percent.

B. Incomes derived from capital and labor (commerce and industry) are taxed 15 percent.

C. Incomes derived from labor (professions and labor services) are taxed 12 percent.

D. Incomes derived from employment in the civil service are taxed 9 percent

The idea of the differentials is evidently to encourage the employment of labor as a source of wealth rather than rely on returns from capital alone. Surtaxes begin at 1,500 lire and go up to a maximum of 2,500,000 lire or more and carry taxes increasing from 1 to 25 percent for the larger amounts.

A HOPEFUL SIGN

Government and luxury taxes include taxes on registration, duties and inheritances stamp tax on the sale of luxuries and articles of common use, ordinary stamp taxes, mortgage taxes, taxes on Government concessions, taxes on mortmain, taxes on bicycles, mechanical vehicles, mineral waters and insurance policies. The commodity tax is 10 percent on the selling price. This applies to articles in the luxury class. On essentials the tax is 2 percent.

It is a hopeful sign that, whereas the imposition of drastic new taxes is still under discussion in England and France, in Italy the axe has already been wielded and the finances of the kingdom have been put on a basis where taxation will not only take care of the annual expenditures of the Government, even though these be inflated by the payment of pensions, war losses and reconstruction, but that steps have been taken through the imposition of the taxes on capital to provide for the repayment of outside indebtedness. Some ten billion lire were subscribed to the new 5.71 percent loan floated in January. This will take care of the floating indebtedness and will refund much of the war paper, thus defleting the currency.

Inasmuch as there are no payments to be made in the near future on account of our war advances the weakness of Italian exchange is looked upon by the royal authorities with equanimity. Although it makes what they have floated in this country will take care of dollar payments, while to buy come high, yet the proceeds of the recent dollar Italian loan the unfavorable exchange allows Italian merchandise to find a ready market here at a huge profit and still compete with our own manufactures and exports from other countries.

The 'New Woman' In Siam

BY HILDA M. LOVE

Bangkok, Siam.—A straw can tell the observant the way of the wind.

A flag served that purpose recently in Siam when the biggest social breeze that has stirred the capital for years was occasioned at a Red Cross fete where the King accepted a flag from a Siamese woman who stood as she gave it to him.

She is the first Siamese woman who has ever stood in public before a King of Siam. That the present monarch was educated at Oxford, his countrywoman at Girton, and that both wore European dress, may have influenced matters. In any case, it created a precedent that astonished the whole community, for the old royal decree that at ceremonies every woman shall fall flat on her face in the King's presence, not even daring to raise her eyes, still prevails.

The King, a progressive, is helping this belated wind of women's emancipation to blow from West to East. His intimation that he desired the Siamese women to grow their hair and clean their teeth caused another furore. The former has never been usual among the masses, it being forbidden that the women should grow long hair—whether to curb their vanity or from hygienic motives is not clear. Consequently thousands of badly bobbed heads destroy one's Western ideas of Eastern beauty, especially when viewed in conjunction with lips and teeth discolored a dark purple by the almsot universal chewing of the betel nut.

Yet these same women ride in the latest model motor-cars, looking strangely incongruous with their short crop of coarse hair, uncovered and without ornament of any description, and more often than not with feet and legs bare.

Native costume is universal, consisting of a little white Magyar-shape blouse and the panung—a skirt of vivid color, the front bottom hem of which is drawn backward between the legs and fastened up at the waist behind, forming g rather unbecoming silhouette, somewhat like a pair of baggy breeches.

But these women have modern appliances in their homes that are denied to many Western wives. Electricity is everywhere, even in the smelliest little Chinese godown, for, thirty years ago, when horse trams were still running in London, an electric tram service was carrying the natives of Siam up and down the straight streets of Bangkok.

Probably no other country presents such an odd blending of ancient and modern, such a cosmopolitan population, such a number of amazing contrasts, as does the land of this wealthy little Ally, with its stores of buried minerals, its great forests of teak and rosewood, and its unique distinction of having the last autocrat in the world for its monarch.

The latter, although approaching middle age, is still a bachelor. If he marries, Siamese law decrees that the bride of the King and the mother of his heir must be his sister.

World's Jewish Population

The population of the earth just before the war, according to statistical authorities, was 1,649,000,000; and though the loss of life in the war has been very great, The American Israelite is inclined to think that this has been offset by the natural increase. So, when it learns that David Trietsch, the Jewish statistician, has estimated the present number of Jews in the world to be 15,430,000, it observes that "the percentage of Jews to the world's population is approximately nine-tenths of one percent. It would seem that, all things considered, they are very much heard from." According to the figures presented by the Cincinnatti weekly, the Hebrew population of the world is distributed as follows:

|---|---|
| Poland | 3,300,000 |

Stinginess In Love

BY WINIFRED BLACK

He's good looking and a good dresser. He can sing, he can tell rather a good story in rather a good way; he has a position which isn't so bad as positions go, and some day he will be a rather prosperous man.

She's in love with him and has been engaged to him for a year—but all her friends hate the sight of him. They say he is selfish, and cold-hearted and scheming and stingy.

The girl says, herself, that in all this time she's been engaged to him he has never given her even a bunch of flowers. He doesn't believe in what we call "such Tom-foolishness." They go to the movies once or twice a week, and enjoy them together, but he never asks her to have even a glass of soda after the movie, and he has never given her a box of candy in his life.

Once, when there was a particularly good play at one of the theaters and all her friends were going to see it, she hinted and hinted, but he wouldn't take her. He said he couldn't afford it, and she knew at the time he had nearly $1,000 in the savings bank.

She says she knows he cares a great deal for her, but he's afraid of showing it. He's told her that he would never allow himself to "go crazy" over any girl.

Now what shall she do?

Listen to her friends, and drop the man?

Or listen to her own heart, and marry him?

LET'S CONSIDER THINGS

Well, my dear girl, I wouldn't mind so much about his not buying the theater tickets, and not giving you candy. I wouldn't even be too mad at him for not buying you a posy now and then. The woman he marries will probably have a limousine and a sable coat some day—when he gets good and ready to buy it for her—while the girl who marries the generous young fellow, who's always bringing her something pretty or something nice, will probably have to make over her dresses. But that about "never going crazy about any girl"—I don't care for that very much, and his idea that he mustn't show that he cares for the girl he's asked to be his wife—somehow, that doesn't appeal to me, either.

He seems to think a great deal about himself, doesn't he? Always telling what he would do—and what he wouldn't. There wouldn't be very much romance about life with a man like that, would there? But perhaps you don't care for romance yourself? Perhaps you just want a comfortable home and a reliable, responsible husband, who will take care of you—if you don't cost too much—and like you well enough—so long as you don't make yourself too expensive.

Well, then, in that case you are two of a kind, and you belong together.

ARE YOU DIFFERENT?

But if you are loving, impulsive, generous, quick of sympathy and light of heart, let me beg you, my dear, not to tie yourself to a cold, calculating, self-conscious, selfish curmudgeon, who will think more of his bank account in a minute than he would of you in a year. I don't mind about the man being stingy with his money. Some of the best people I know—the kindest and the noblest—are very careful with money, and those who love them usually see the day when they're glad of it. But when a man begins to be stingy with his love, and the showing of it, and that before he's married, I'd just as soon marry a codfish, caught off the Newfoundland Banks, and be done with it.

No warm-hearted, affectionate, impulsive girl could ever be happy with a man like that—not if he turned into a millionaire and sat up all night cutting coupons every time the first of the month came around.

Thrift, prudence, good management, common sense in the use of money—all these things are fine qualities. But cold-heartedness, selfishness, mean suspicion, petty stinginess—not for me—no, I thank you!

I'd rather marry a light-hearted fool, without a cent to his name and take my chances at finding something to laugh at anyhow, when I slipped my hand into his and wandered through the world to seek my fortune.

A Ballad De Bunk -:- By R. B.

A circle is a wondrous thing. It goes 'round and 'round and has neither beginning nor end. One part is just as good as another. You can't tell them apart. Every point in a circle enjoys absolute independence and self-determination. If you make a careful study of the circle you will learn how to pass the buck.

Pietro Mascalazzo lived in a tenement house on Mulberry Street when he was at home. During business hours he ran a barber shop on the Bowery where you could get a shave and a haircut for 35 cents. His landlord was the Sokem Realty Company. Business was rotten, expenses were high and Pietro was outta luck.

So what did he do? With hair oil going higher and higher and witch hazel, cologne, bay rum, shampoo cream and shaving soap hitting the sky there was nothing left for Pietro but to hike his prices. He was a kind-hearted chap and he hated to do it. Nevertheless, he had to increase his charges for all tonsorial work 25 percent.

Asparagus Jones was a clerk in a jobbing house. He was a nice sort of person in his way excepting that he had very little sense. Nevertheless, he felt that he had to live. The greatest joy that Gus had in life was getting shaved and shampooed at Pietro's joint. When Pietro's prices went up, Gus's income received a dent.

So what did he do? Of course, there was no real reason why Gus had to live, but as long as he felt that way about it he had to make ends meet.

So he went to Mr. Ooft, the head of the jobbing house, and asked for a 25 percent raise. Mr. Ooft had a fit. Gus was the sixteenth clerk to ask for a raise. But after several days of chewing the rag, Mr. Ooft said: "All right!"

Mr. Ooft wasn't a bad chap if you took him right. He, too, felt that he ought to live. But the commission was somewhat on the blink. Besides which, Mr. Ooft's car was wearing out and he needed a new one. And Mrs. Ooft was kicking about household expenses. And Mr. Ooft hated to come home at night.

So what did he do? He might have cut down some of his living expenses and resigned from his clubs and worn celluloid collars and traveled in the subway. But did he? He did not. He sent for his red-haired stenographer who spelled "germ" with a "j" and notified H. Dink: "My terms for handling your goods are up 25 percent, beginning today."

H. Dink was a rich manufacturer. The way he got rich was by taking in money. Nobody ever gets rich paying money out. The richer a man is the more it hurts him to part with mezumeh. Mr. Ooft's letter gave a pain. It seemed to H. Dink that the world was full of Ooffs, who had banded together to make him pay, pay, pay!

So what did he do? Of course it wouldn't have hurt him to cut a million dollars a year from his income, but H. Dink wasn't built that way. He suddenly remembered that he controlled the Sokem Realty Company. And with a cheerful smile he telephoned to that company to raise all rents 25 percent. Which shows what some men will do for pelf.

When Pietro Mascalazzo found that his rent was raised he swore in Italian, in English and in Italian-English. And, of course, the only way to raise the money was to raise his rates. So he used his razor. Isn't the circle a wonderful thing? Still if I knew Pietro's exact spot in the circle and also H. Dink's, I'd prefer H. Dink's, myself.

Hardening Arteries

BY BRICE BELDEN, M. D.

Hardening of the blood vessels is not usually a general process, involving all the arteries to the same extent. It displays a tendency to attack individual systems; the kidney vessels, or those of the heart (for the heart itself has its own arteries), or those of the liver or brain, creating morbid states whose manifestations vary according to the region involved.

Therefore the initial symptoms are such as one would expect to result from disturbances of this or that local circulation due to the changes in the walls of the vessels.

The blood pressure is usually heightened in arteriosclerosis especially when the arterial degeneration bears most heavily on the tissues of the kidneys and is associated with Bright's disease.

Constitutionally, there is a slackening of the intellectual powers with inability to concentrate the attention, and diminished capacity for work. The subject of this condition is rapidly fatigued and if effort be maintained in spite of this, headache and exhaustion follow. Under stress of excitement there is apt to be temporary loss of memory or disturbances of speech.

This state is associated with a peculiar sensitiveness to the effects of alcohol and tobacco, which even in moderation, are apt to cause distressing sensations that worry the patient and render him morbidly irritable. Irritability of temper is a fairly constant manifestation, especially as the victim sooner or later becomes aware that his judgment is not as sound as it once was, that self-control is lessened, and that responsibilities weigh more heavily upon him than of yore.

More or less persistent headache is a common symptom in the early stages of arteriosclerosis. The patient awakes with it and during the day it increases in intensity. Mental effort, alcohol, tobacco and excitement aggravate it.

There is almost always more or less mental depression. Sleep is disturbed, though actual insomnia is uncommon. Sleep is less sound and refreshing than it ought to be and is peculiarly sensitive to trifling dietetic irregularities.

Giddiness, when it recurs daily is quite characteristic of beginning arteriosclerosis. The vertigo may be caused by mere change of position and may not amount at first to more than a feeling that things tend to "swim" before the eyes, while at the same time there is a ringing in the ears.

Twenty Fat Women In Reducing Course

Accept Chicago Health Commissioner's Offer To Relieve Them Of Surplus Weight

Chicago, April 22.—Twenty women volunteers of an average weight of 220-35 pounds, started a six weeks' officially sponsored course in reducing here today under the direction of Health Commissioner John Dill Robertson. Home gardening, long walks, prescribed diets and accepted reducing exercises will compriss their program for the next six weeks.

Commissioner Robertson had called for fifty volunteers, half of them men and half women. Twenty fat women and one fat man answered. The man fled when he found himself alone.

The women will don overalls tomorrow and take an hour's exercise in back yard gardens. Spading, hoeing and weed pulling are included in Dr. Robertson's course for them.

Twelve of the women are housewives, two typists, one a stenographer, two clerks, one mercantile buyer, one office manager and one a nurse.

They are to report to Dr. Robertson daily by telephone for advice on exercise and diet, and each Thursday the entire contingent will appear to be weighed.

"THE BETTER 'OLE"

THE ROMANCE OF OLD BILL

"THE BETTER 'OLE"
The Best Criticisms Without Exception Ever Accorded A Motion Picture Feature By The New York Newspapers.

NEW YORK EVENING WORLD
"The Better 'Ole" shown in motion pictures at the Strand, while the play is still current on the speaking stage, is as fine an example as one could wish for as to what can be done on the screen. It is one of the best motion pictures shown—if it may not be called the best. To miss seeing it is to miss seeing a screen entertainment better than most of those bearing the "Made in California" stamp.

NEW YORK EVENING MAIL
The film adds nothing to the sketchy string of Bairnsfather cartoons in the way of romance, but holds them level as an appealingly human portrayal of character. Old Bill and his pals, as they were shown at the Strand yesterday, made friends as quickly, or almost as quickly, with their audiences as they do in the Coburn production at the Cort. The comedy situations were quickly grasped. "The Better 'Ole" is one of the few features, moreover that I have heard applauded in the movie theaters, indicating, I should say, that it has much the same quality of appeal as the play. And if it has that, it is about as sure of success as it need be.

NEW YORK EVENING TELEGRAM
"The Better 'Ole" as a photoplay has more variety than the stage play. It has not lost any of the humour of the walrus-moustached figure of "Old Bill" together with his satellites, Alf and Bert. The story written around Old Bill is told with humour and a healthy and wholly characteristic pathos, on the screen, as on the stage. The acting is admirable. The picture will be thoroughly enjoyed by all who see it.
